By Appointment.

Bolton Castle is a square and somewhat plain building which was erected in the reign of Richard II. by the first Lord Scrope. The Castle was the centre of much fighting during the Civil Wars, being retained by the Royalists until in 1645 it was surrendered after a severe siege and only when the defenders were reduced to the consumption of horse-flesh as food. Mary Queen of Scots was imprisoned in this building for six months in 1568.
